

William "Rick" Graham's bio reads like the story of many Detroiters. While being educated in the Detroit Public School System he began working in his family's dry cleaning/laundromat business. Afterwards, he attended the local university, began a near thirty year career at Ford Motor Company and retired. After retiring from Ford's, he started a publishing company, where he published his novel, Palmer Park, and the self-help sales guide, "Sell Like Harrell", The Mindset and Motivation of a Sales Professional".

Current business ventures include the publishing company, WEGPublishing, llc and his service company, GPDeliveries. His earlier business relationship with Mr. Harrell led to his current position as a partner of strategic planning for The Bullish Institute of Financial Literacy, and now the Chief Operating Officer of The Bullish Youth Group, Inc.
